What wonderful days. We have been blessed with few of them lately. Days that are sunny, when the humidity is low and the temperature is perfect. These days make us feel like getting outside, working, cutting grass, taking a walk or going for a run, or maybe just sitting in the sunshine. Perhaps we do not feel like doing anything at all, and don't. Now suppose on one of these days God is so rude as to interrupt your perfect day with a request. Not a normal request, like be nice to your brother, but something like "Moses, I want you to return to Egypt and lead your people to freedom." What would you do if you received one of those God sized requests that seem impossible? It may even be that God will tell you what he asks is impossible and people will not listen to you and you will be mostly a failure as he did Ezekiel. Now what?

Let's look at Moses. Remember, he is on the run for murder. That adds to the strangeness of the whole story – why would God choose someone like that. Moses is wandering about in the desert when he sees a "burning bush," clearly an aberration of sunlight and shadow modern skeptics claim. Maybe so, who can challenge how God works. It does its job and incites Moses curiosity enough to investigate. It gets odder. Moses hears a voice coming from the flames that do not burn. God basically says to Moses, "Go back to Egypt and free my people. There's a lot more to the story but we are interested in Moses first response. "Not me," followed by a litany of excuses. God gets a little huffy with Moses and he finally does return. What is interesting for us is that Moses, who is later claimed to be one of the great heroes of the Bible, is at first very reticent about this God thing and refuses God's request. It takes more than a little prodding to get him on board.

Do the prophets fare any better. Not really. Jonah at first runs as far away as he can get. "Go to Nineveh, preach to them" God states. "No," is Jonah's adamant reply. He hops on a ship and ends up in the belly of a great fish wishing he had had better judgment. Like Moses he must be persuaded to do God's will. We might feel a little better about this if we understood that Nineveh was the capital of the nation on the verge of destroying Israel. But still, God is God and will do what God will do. Who are we to challenge God? Might I remind you that we do it all the time. What about Jeremiah? When called upon by God, like Moses, he has his excuses. Throughout his time as a prophet he indulges in one long jeremiad – a jeremiad is a long mournful complaint, lamentation, or list of woes, we can see where it gets its definition – after another. In fact he is known as the weeping prophet. Isaiah at first brush seems better but remember what it took to get him there. He was transported into the throne room of God with visions of angels, he heard and experienced thunder that shook the foundations of reality, and had a burning coal placed on his lips. Then he said, "I will go."

Did anybody get it right? I believe so. We have an example in one young girl named Mary who became the mother of Jesus. Like so many others an angel interrupted her day with a preposterous announcement. The angel claims that she will "conceive in her womb and bear a son." Mary intuits that this means quite soon. Mary knows as we say the facts of life and that this is impossible, not to mention dangerous, shameful, and that this will wreck her wedding plans and probably her whole life. One word tells us everything we need to know about how to answer God and God's inopportune injections into our lives. That word is "How." "How will this be?" It is not "This is impossible, I do not want to do this. How can this possibly be" as a dodge, but "How will God do this?" It is a statement of faith. "Tell me how this will come about." This is the question Moses should have asked, "How will the people of Egypt be freed? How will I do what you ask?" It is the question the prophets should have asked, "How will I deliver the message you give me?" It is the right question. It is the question we should ask.

Board of Deacons: Sandy Ballas, Nancy Kimble, Diane Scott, Shyrl Stange, and Shelly Vaia-Chappell

To Accept the "Terms of Call" as proposed by Poke Run Budget & Finance Committee and approved by the Poke Run Session.

Tim Martin presented the entire Current Fund Budget, including Pastoral Terms of Call and the Benevolence Budget proposed by the Mission & Stewardship Committee to the congregation. He pointed out that the Presbytery suggested pay raise was proposed. The Current Fund remains at a deficit though not as severely as last year due in part to two bequeaths. Because such gifts are a type of "windfall" they cannot be counted upon to sustain Poke Run into the future. He encouraged everyone to examine their individual giving, noting that should a deficit continue, several Poke Run budgeted programs will need to be examined for cutbacks. This could include the Music Program. If anyone has questions or concerns about either budget, please bring them to someone on the Budget & Finance Committee.

Tim Martin, Nancy Kimble, Linda Chicka, Valerie Hansen, Doug Ross and Amy Wilkinson.

A very special thank you to the Poke Run Congregational Life Committee for the delicious lunch shared after Sunday's meeting. This group is always looking for helping hands, please consider contacting one of the members if you are available and willing:

Stories of Redstone

Christ at work in our midst

On October 29th, congregations from around District III gathered to celebrate the 500th anniversary of the Reformation. Over 200 Presbyterians representing many congregations gathered at Third Presbyterian Church of Uniontown for a worship service filled with music from bagpipes, organ, choir and praise band. The congregation even had a special visitor, hearing from Martin Luther himself (wonderfully portrayed by Paul Cramer) as he described what brought him to that moment of posting the 95 Theses and what hopes he held for the church. The congregation gathered at The Lord's Table, with communion served by intinction from elders representing the gathered congregations. The offering was designated for the Fayette County Community Action Food Bank. After worship, a bountiful covered dish dinner was enjoyed by all!

Third Presbyterian went over and above to be good hosts, but Rev. Coleen Molinaro also gave special thanks to each person who came from another congregation, noting the bravery it takes to enter an unfamiliar worship space. All who stepped out in faith were blessed by a truly wonderful and exciting day!

From those who attended there has been an overwhelmingly positive response. From a 9-year-old member of Fort Burd, to a teenager of Third to the oldest member of Pleasant View, everyone is asking "when can we do this again?" The hope from the leaders of District III is soon!

What started as a "Spirit nudge" blossomed into a day full of encouragement, joy and unity! To God Be the Glory!
